Conor Cunneen

Travels from: Illinois

Fee Range: $5,001 - $7,500

Conor Cunneen is an Irishman happily exiled in Naperville, Illinois, where he says the Guinness is drinkable (thankfully), the natives are friendly and he is only 30 minutes from Chicago's O'Hare airport.

Conor was often told he had the Gift of GAB, but it was after he left his position as VP Marketing Unilever that he truly honed his skills becoming an in-demand business keynote speaker and motivational humorist. Conor's inventive, customized keynotes on strategy, marketing, leadership and motivation have been likened to "An Irish Dilbert" and "James Joyce meets Tom Peters."

He has developed a Brand Promise unique amongst keynote business speakers which is "E4" -- Energize, Educate, Entertain and Easy to work with. His clients include Harley-Davidson, Siemens, Abbott Laboratories, Navigant Consulting, Spanish Food & Drink Federation, Ace Hardware and Marketing Week UK.

He is the author of Why Ireland Never Invaded America - An Insightful Unique Look at Corporate Strategy which has been described as, "An enchanting mélange of good business sense wrapped in a mixture of Irish situation comedy and straightforward whimsy." Conor's latest book, SHEIFGAB the World : 8 Building Blocks to Successful Job Transition, is a must-read for job seekers.

Conor is a two-time cancer survivor who says that having had "a thyroidectomy and a prostatectomy, I now have a unique Irish condition known as there's-not-much-left-o-me!" Conor is an award winning humorist and a winner of the coveted Chicago Toastmasters Humorous Speaker of the Year title. His winning speech was "Customer Service in San Quentin Jail."

Conor is co-host on JobTalk, a Chicago local radio station, and is a board member of the Community Career Center at Naperville. He is a former VP Marketing Unilever and has worked in Ireland, UK and USA on blue chip brands such as Hellmann's, Knorr, Lipton and Thomas' English Muffins.

Conor uses powerful evocative imagery and an impish sense of humor in his keynotes. Combine this with well-researched customized content and you have compelling keynotes which are demanding of action. Recent engagements outside the United States include Finland, Scotland, Ireland, England, Canada and Spain. He has been published over forty times in USA, Ireland, Australia, UK.
